Farmers' Exhibit and Contest.

—Prof. K. L. Hatch of the University School of Agriculture was here last week and assisted the local committee in arranging the premium list for the big contest December 8th. Prof. Hatch says the farmers in the communities where these exhibits have been held for the past few years are very enthusiastic over them. In those places the farmers come every day for a week and listen to the lectures, in addition to the one day exhibit.

As will be readily understood the object of the exhibit is to get the farmers to raising better grains and in a more scientific manner. The pure bred seed grains furnished by the Agricultural School produce about 50 per cent more crop per acre than the common varieties, and being bred especially for this climate, they always mature before frost.

Every exhibitor at the contest, whether a prize winner or not, will be given some of the seed free, and next year there will be special prizes for pure bred grains.

Big Automobile Show.
Stevens' Auto Journal.
The grand opening of the Auto Salon Co's, new home will take place on Nov. 2, 3 and 4. At the same time the company will hold the General Wisconsin automobile show. The exhibit will be open every evening on these dates from 7:30 to 10:30, and besides having on display a large number of 1912 model autos, they will have speaking by local people and music by the Union band each evening. On Thursday, November 2, the show will be formally opened by Mayor Walters. On Friday T. H. Hanna will speak, his subject being, "What is Home Without an Auto?" Judge Park will speak on Saturday evening. The cars on display will include the self starting Cadillac, E. M. P., Plunders, Buick, Stoddard-Dayton, Overland and Rambler. An expert for each make will be on hand to explain and demonstrate the good points of the car he represents and a full line of automobile accessories will also be on display.

This will be the first exhibition of this kind ever given in this part of the state.

Scandinavian Moravian Church.
This evening a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Rocksted on Oak Street. We shall study John 4. The Ladies Aid Society will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Hagerstrom. In the evening the Willing Workers will also meet with Mrs. Hagerstrom. English services will be held on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Come and worship with us.

Amusement Hall Opens.
The Amusement hall was opened last night with a skating party and there was a large crowd on the floor as well as a big attendance of spectators. The rink will be open every afternoon and evening hereafter.

TAG DAY Friday, November 3rd.

Tag day has become a recognized institution in our city and the ladies of Federation have designated Friday, November 3rd as the date for the tributing their tags. As usual the money will be spent for charity. You will not be asked for any stated amount but you may give as your heart dictates, and every penny will be very thankfully received. You know "the poor we always have with us," and it is our Christian duty to look out and provide for them.

The Relief Committee of the Federation use Tag day as a means to provide funds for the year. Winter is always hard on the poor and the calls for help will soon be coming in. We do not give promiscuously—every case is looked into before aid is given. Many were helped last year, mostly widows and orphans and your charity is solicited for this worthy cause.

We have not had Tag day for two years and we hope the people will respond as generously as they have in the past.

The Wood County National Bank has generously placed their beautiful waiting room at the ladies' disposal for the day, so headquarters will be established there.

Wild Pigeons Again.
William Strope, who lives near Plover, recently saw a flock of wild pigeons, and as wild pigeons have been scarce for the past thirty years, in fact, by many claimed to be extinct, Mr. Strope has resolved considerable adverse criticism thru the columns of the press. Some said that he must have been intoxicated or else that the birds he saw were mourning doves or black-birds. A man would have to be pretty far gone to mistake a black-bird for a passenger pigeon and so doubt if any man who has ever seen wild pigeons would make such a mistake. And if he had never seen wild pigeons it would never occur to him to imagine that they were what he saw. A mourning dove, when flying rapidly, does sometimes somewhat resemble the passenger pigeon, but the mourning dove generally flies short distances, and is never seen in large flocks like the one Mr. Strope described. While the wild pigeon has been a minus quantity for the past thirty years wherever man has been, it may be that they are not extinct after all.

Two Ballots to be Used.
Two separate ballots will be used in the election next fall, one for the presidential electors and the other for the state, congressional, legislative and county tickets. The two ballots will be printed on different colors. The intention of the law providing for these ballots, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, is to permit voters to more easily "scrutinize" their tickets. As a rule voters who wish to vote either the Republican or Democratic ticket to scratch the rest of the ticket, fearing they might spoil the ticket altogether, and the large number of straight tickets voted on presidential years is accounted for by this fact. The new arrangement will permit strong partisans on the head of the ticket to vote that ticket without in any way interfering with their also voting a split state, congressional, legislative or county ticket. As the two ballots will be printed on different colored paper it will not be easy to make a mistake.

Guy Stevens Dismissed.
Several days were spent in Justice Pomainville's court last week on the hearing of Guy Stevens who is charged with holding up the Damon saloon. The matter was adjourned on Saturday until this morning, when it will be taken up again. Up to the present time none of the evidence seems to connect Mr. Stevens with the holdup to any great extent, although the state may have something to spring later in the game.

Later—the case came up before Justice Pomainville again this morning and the defendant was dismissed, the evidence submitted having failed to connect him in any way with the matter.

Schroeder-Haferman.
Miss Laura Schroeder and Mr. Arthur Haferman were married this morning at the west side Lutheran church. Rev. Wm. Luthmann officiating. They were accompanied by Misses Clara Schroeder, Sophie Schiller and Clara Zimman and Messrs. Henry Schroeder, Frank and Albert Haferman.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schroeder on the west side. Mr. and Mrs. Haferman will make their home in this city. The Tribune extends congratulations.

Installing Pipe Organ.
A crew of workmen from the W. W. Kimball factory are here installing the pipe organ in the new Congregational church. The new organ is the most elaborate instrument of the kind in this city. The bellows of the organ will be operated by a water motor. It is the intention to give a recital on the instrument when completed.

Miss Gertrude Kuntz, who has been visiting her sisters in this city for the past two weeks, left on Monday for Milwaukee to take up her work again as trained nurse in one of the hospitals there.

Messrs. Chas. Natwick, J. J. Jeffrey, Prof. Merrill, Drs. Houston and Bandelin and Albert Natwick expect to leave next week for the wilds of Sawyer county where they will spend two weeks hunting deer on the Chippewa River near Raddon.

Flash-Laramie.
Chas. Laramie of this city and Miss Lizzy Flash of Marshfield were married on Tuesday morning at eight o'clock at the Catholic church at Marshfield. They will make their home in Marshfield where Mr. Laramie is employed.

Mrs. N. Laramie and Mrs. Robert Pagel from here attended the wedding.

Gave a Good Lecture.
Prof. Wm. B. Patty gave a lecture at the auditorium of the Lincoln high school on Thursday evening, his subjects being liquid air, wireless telegraphy and radium. The lecture was a most interesting one and a large audience was in attendance to hear it. Prof. Patty is a good talker and his audience was greatly pleased with what he had to offer.

Sunny Side of Broadway.

—No musical, play and no comedy seen in New York in the past two seasons has caused such honest, wholesome laughter and has been commended so highly as "The Sunny Side of Broadway," the latest offering from the pen of Boyle Woolfolk, whose success of last season, "The Winning Miss," will be remembered by all lovers of music.

This delightful comedy will be presented here for the first time on Friday, Nov. 3 at Daly's Theatre. Foremost in the cast is Mr. Max Bloom, whose pronounced prominence in musical comedy in the last several seasons has made such an impression on theatre-goers that his work will long be remembered.

Mr. Bloom is well supported by a capable company, among them being Miss Alice Sher, comedienne, Miss Florence Morrison, Prima Donna; Mr. J. E. Coughlin, John Gilmore and Jack Leslie, whose portrayal of Irish gentlemen is a riot of laughter and fun.

The play is overflowing with melody and delightful popular songs, a few of the most prominent being "Beware of the Garden of Love," which is a gem of the highest quality, "My New Motor Boat," "Meet Me at the Stage Door Johnnie," "College Days," "Every Town Has a Broadway," "Oh Mr. Moon You're Full Tonight," "I'm a Devil," "Love Is Very Foolish," "Selling Papers" and the talk of the country, "The Pigeon Hunt."

The staging of this comedy was personally done by Mr. Woolfolk, whose capability is shown by the clever dances seen through the entire performance.

Making a Fine Outfit.
The Kaully Manufacturing Company of this city is manufacturing a saloon outfit for E. F. Finch of Virginia, Minn., which is the swiftest thing of the kind that has been turned out here.

The outfit is being made of African mahogany, trimmed with crotch mahogany and inlaid with ebony and white holly.

The outfit consists of a fully foot bar and back bar, with nine foot refrigerators at each end, two seven foot cigar cases, a sixteen foot tobacco case, and six stools. The bar will have a solid rosewood rail and the workbench will be of German silver.

There will be a cigar store in front with sliding doors between that and the saloon, and on Sundays and other days when the saloon is shut up the sliding doors can be closed and locked and the front used as a cigar store and smoking room. There will also be a telephone booth and the windows will be fitted with mosaic glass throughout. The outfit will cost $1000.

Anti-Treat Movement.
All hail to the "Dutch treat" campaign and more power to it. The "Dutch treat" is a practical working out of the theory that if a man thirsts for liquid refreshments he ought to stake that thirst according to his own requirements and capacity. In other words he should go it alone. There is no reason why he should insist on a friend, who perhaps does not crave it, drinking with him, thus that he should buy his friends a new pair of shoes when he purchases some for himself. The "Dutch treat" is simply common sense. If it can be grafted on to the body politic it will be an effective agency for the promotion of temperance. The foolish practice of "treating" is responsible for two-thirds of the drunkenness in the United States. —Jefferson Banner.

A Plea For the Boys.

Many a Grand Rapids mother is wondering why nothing is ever done for the boys of this city in the way of providing them some sort of amusement or recreation outside of that of hanging about the street corners, pool rooms or saloons where it is generally accepted notion that boys can learn all of the bad there is in the world, with nobody to even suggest a grain of the good to them.

We wonder why it is. Are we so stingy that we are willing to go along from day to day with no thought but that of making a living, while the rising generation shifts for himself, regardless of whether he goes to the devil or any other place that he happens to encounter on his journey thru life. We believe not.

One crowd is just finishing up a church edifice costing some twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars for the purpose of religious worship, notwithstanding the fact that they already possessed a fairly good church. Another is just pushing the outskirts of parks and a city plan for the beautifying of the city, cost unknown, and a commercial club is hustling to secure industries and had no difficulty in securing subscriptions aggregating sixty thousand dollars for the first proposition that was brought before the people, while the city, thru the medium of taxation, is supporting a system of schools, the like of which can be found in very few cities of this size anywhere in the country. This does not indicate that we are all tight wads, as all of these things are supported in a decent manner, and some of them elaborately.

Then why cannot we do something for the boys and young men? If our members does not fail us there was a man here several years ago who spoke on the subject of establishing a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city and there was some enthusiasm displayed at that time, but as none of our local on thousands saw fit to take hold of the matter it was allowed to drop without anything being done.

There is no question but what the membership of such an institution would be large enough to support it in good shape.

This is a matter that some of our public spirited people should look into, not merely with a view to talking it over, but for its actual establishment. It can be done, and while it would take some work, it would be better spent than much of the energy that is put into other things. Let us get together and see what can be done.

Art Exhibit.
The Art Committee of the Women's Federation of Clubs have arranged for an exhibition of pictures to be held in the MacKinnon block at the west end of the bridge, Nov. 9, 10 and 11. This exhibition of pictures is one of more than ordinary interest. It consists of carbon photographs, and engravings, loaned by A. W. Elson and Co. of Boston, Mass. This collection is a large one and contains only the very best reproductions of the masterpieces of art of different countries and periods. Few collections have ever been brought together which so completely cover the history of Art of all times as this.

In addition to the Elson exhibits there will be a collection of Japanese art prints, from Hiroko's Matsuki Co., also a collection of Japanese hand paintings from F. W. Isabe, Madison. The exhibit will open Thursday evening, Nov. 9, and Friday and Saturday afternoons at three o'clock. Programs will be given each evening. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the public schools; and two large pictures will be given, as prizes, to the room selling the greatest number of tickets. Admission 10 cents.—21.

Frank Natwick Hurt.

However, no bones were broken and he has since recovered sufficiently to be able to be about.

And if he had never seen wild pigeons it would never occur to him to imagine that they were what he saw. A mourning dove, when flying rapidly, does sometimes somewhat resemble the passenger pigeon, but the mourning dove generally flies short distances, and is never seen in large flocks like the one Mr. Strope described. While the wild pigeon has been a minus quantity for the past thirty years wherever man has been, it may be that they are not extinct after all.

Two Ballots to be Used.

Two separate ballots will be used in the election next fall, one for the presidential electors and the other for the state, congressional, legislative and county tickets. The two ballots will be printed on different colors. The intention of the law providing for these ballots, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, is to permit voters to more easily "scratch" their tickets. As a rule voters who wish to vote either the Republican or Democratic ticket in presidential years have been afraid to scratch the rest of the ticket, fearing they might spoil the ticket altogether, and the large number of straight tickets voted on presidential years is accounted for by this fact. The new arrangement will permit strong partisans on the head of the ticket to vote that ticket without in any wise interfering with their also voting a split state, congressional, legislative or county ticket. As the two ballots will be printed on different colored paper it will not be easy to make a mistake.

Guy Stevens Dismissed.

Several days were spent in Justice Pomainville's court last week on the hearing of Guy Stevens who is charged with holding up the Damon saloon. The matter was adjourned on Saturday until this morning, when it will be taken up again. Up to the present time none of the evidence seems to connect Mr. Stevens with the holdup to any great extent, although the state may have something to spring later in the game.

Later—the case came up before Justice Pomainville again this morning and the defendant was dismissed, the evidence submitted having failed to connect him in any way with the matter.

Schroeder-Haferman.

Miss Laura Schroeder and Mr. Arthur Haferman were married this morning at the west side Lutheran church. Rev. Wm. Nommensen officiating. They were accompanied by Misses Clara Schroeder, Sophie Schiller and Clara Ziemann, and Messrs. Henry Schroeder, Frank and Albert Haferman.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schroeder on the west side.

Mr. and Mrs. Haferman will make their home in this city. The Tribune extends congratulations.

Installing Pipe Organ.

A crew of workmen from the W. W. Kimball factory are here installing the pipe organ in the new Congregational church. The new organ is the most elaborate instrument of the kind in this city. The bellows of the organ will be operated by a water motor. It is the intention to give a recital on the instrument when completed.

Miss Gertrude Kuntz, who has been visiting her sisters in this city for the past two weeks, left on Monday for Milwaukee to take up her work again as trained nurse in one of the hospitals there.

Messrs. Chas. Natwick, J. J. Jeffrey, Prof. Merrill, Drs. Houston and Baudelin, and Albert Natwick expect to leave next week for the wilds of Sawyer county where they will spend two weeks hunting deer on the Chippewa River near Raddison.

Sunny Side of Broadway.

—No musical, play and no comedy seen in New York in the past two seasons has caused such honest, wholesome laughter and has been commended so highly as "The Sunny Side of Broadway," the latest offering from the pen of Boyle Woolfolk, whose success of last season, "The Winning Miss," will be remembered by all lovers of music.

This delightful comedy will be presented here for the first time on Friday, Nov. 3 at Daly's Theatre.

Foremost in the cast is Mr. Max Bloom, whose pronounced prominence in musical comedy in the last several seasons has made such an impression on theatre-goers that his work will long be remembered.

Mr. Bloom is well supported by a capable company, among them being Miss Alice Sher, comedienne, Miss Florence Morrison, Prima Donna; Mr. J. E. Ooughlin, John Gilmore and Jack Leslie, whose portrayal of Irish gentlemen is a riot of laughter and fun.

The play is overflowing with melody and delightful popular songs, a few of the most prominent being "Beware of the Garden of Love," which is a gem of the highest quality, "My New Motor Boat," "Meet Me at the Stage Door Johnnie," "College Days," "Every Town Has a Broadway," "Oh Mr. Moon You're Full Tonight," "I'm a Devil," "Love is Very Foolish," "Selling Paper" and the talk of the country, "The Pazzaz Plant."

The staging of this comedy was personally done by Mr. Woolfolk, whose capability is shown by the clever dances seen through the entire performance.

Making a Fine Outfit.

The Keady Manufacturing Company of this city is manufacturing a saloon outfit for E. F. Pich of Virginia, Minn., which is the swiftest thing of the kind that has been turned out here.

The outfit is being made of African mahogany, trimmed with crotch mahogany and inlaid with ebony and white holly.

The outfit consists of a forty foot bar and back bar, with nine foot refrigerators at each end, two seven foot cigar cases, a sixteen foot tobacco case, and six booths. The bar will have a solid rosewood rail and the workbenches will be of German silver.

There will be a cigar store in front with sliding doors between that and the saloon, and on Sundays and other days when the saloon is shut up the sliding doors can be closed and locked and the front used as a cigar store and smoking room. There will also be a telephone booth and the windows will be fitted with mosquito glass thruout. The outfit will cost $4000.

Anti-Treat Movement.

All hail to the "Dutch treat" campaigns and more power to it. The "Dutch treat" is a practical working out of the theory that if a man thirsts for liquid refreshments he ought to slake that thirst according to his own requirements and capacity. In other words he should go it alone. There is no reason why he should insist on a friend, who perhaps does not crave it, drinking with him, than that he should buy his friends a new pair of shoes when he purchases some for himself. The "Dutch treat" is simply common sense. If it can be grafted on to the body politic it will be an effective agency for the promotion of temperance. The foolish practice of "treating" is responsible for two-thirds of the drunkenness in the United States. —Jefferson Banner.

A Plea For the Boys.

Many a Grand Rapids mother is wondering why nothing is ever done for the boys of this city in the way of providing them some sort of amusement or recreation outside of that of hanging about the street corners, pool rooms or saloons, where it is the generally accepted notion that boys can learn all of the bad there is in the world, with nobody to even suggest a grain of the good to them.

We wonder why it is. Are we so stingy that we are willing to go along from day to day with no thought but that of making a living, while the rising generation shifts for himself, regardless of whether he goes to the devil or any other place that he happens to encounter on his journey thru life? We believe not.

One crowd is just finishing up a church edifice costing some twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars for the purpose of religious worship, not overlooking the fact that they already possessed a fairly good church.

Another faction is pushing the establishment of parks and a city plan for the beautifying of the city, cost unknown, and a commercial club is hustling to secure industries and had no difficulty in securing subscriptions aggregating sixty thousand dollars for the first proposition that was brought before the people, while the city, thru the medium of taxation, is supporting a system of schools, the like of which can be found in very few cities of this size anywhere in the country. This does not indicate that we are all tight wads, as all of these things are supported in a decent manner, and some of them elaborately.

Then why cannot we do something for the boys and young men? If our memory does not fail us there was a man here several years ago who spoke on the subject of establishing a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city and there was some enthusiasm displayed at that time, but as none of our local enthusiasts saw fit to take hold of the matter it was allowed to drop without anything being done.

There is no question but what the membership of such an institution would be large enough to support it in good shape.

This is a matter that some of our public spirited people should look into, not merely with a view to talking it over, but for its actual establishment. It can be done, and while it would take some work, it would be better spent than much of the energy that is put into other things. Let us get together and see what can be done.

Art Exhibit.

The Art Committee of the Woman's Federation of Clubs have arranged for an exhibition of pictures to be held in the MacKinnon block at the west end of the bridge, Nov. 9, 10 and 11. This exhibition of pictures is one of more than ordinary interest. It consists of carbon photographs, and engravings loaned by A. W. Elson and Co. of Boston, Mass. This collection is a large one and contains only the very best reproductions of the masterpieces of art of different countries and periods. Few collections have ever been brought together which so completely cover the history of Art of all times as this.

In addition to the Elson exhibit there will be a collection of Japanese art prints, from Bruke's Matsuki Co., also a collection of Japanese hand paintings from R. W. Isabe, Madison. The exhibit will open Thursday evening, Nov. 9, and Friday and Saturday afternoons at three o'clock. Programs will be given each evening. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the public schools; and two large pictures will be given, as prizes, to the room selling the greatest number of tickets. Admission 10 cents.—2t.

Farmers' Exhibit and Contest.

Prof. K. L. Hatch of the University School of Agriculture was here last week and assisted the local committee in arranging the premium list for the big contest December 6th. Prof. Hatch says the farmers in the communities where these exhibits have been held for the past few years are very enthusiastic over them. In those places the farmers come every day for a week and listen to the lectures, in addition to the one day exhibit.

As will be readily understood the object of the exhibit is to get the farmers to raising better grains and in a more scientific manner. The pure bred seed grains furnished by the Agricultural School produce about 50 per cent more crop per acre than the common varieties, and being bred especially for this climate, they always mature before frost.

Every exhibitor at the contest, whether a prize winner or not, will be given some of the seed free, and next year there will be special prizes for pure bred grains.

Prof. Moore, the head of the State School, will judge the exhibits and address the meeting in the afternoon. He has the reputation of saying more in one hour to interest a farmer than any other speaker in the country can in all day.

The full premium list will be published next week.

TAG DAY Friday, November 3rd.

Tag day has become a recognized institution in our city and the ladies of Federation have designated Friday, November 3rd, as the date for distributing their tags. As usual the money will be spent for charity. You will not be asked for any stated amount but you may give as your heart dictates, and every penny will be very thankfully received. You know "the poor we always have with us," and it is our Christian duty to look out and provide for them.

The Relief Committee of the Federation use Tag day as a means to provide funds for the year. Winter is always hard on the poor and the calls for help will soon be coming in. We do not give promiscuously—every case is looked into before aid is given. Many were helped last year, mostly widows and orphans and your charity is solicited for this worthy cause.

We have not had Tag day for two years and we hope the people will respond as generously as they have in the past.

The Wood County National Bank has generously placed their beautiful waiting room at the ladies' disposal for the day, so headquarters will be established there.

Wild Pigeons Again.

William Strope, who lives near Plover, recently saw a flock of wild pigeons, and as wild pigeons have been scarce for the past thirty years, in fact, by many claimed to be extinct, Mr. Strope has received considerable adverse criticism thru the columns of the press. Some said that he must have been intoxicated or else that the birds he saw were mourning doves or black-birds. A man would have to be pretty far gone to mistake a black-bird for a passenger pigeon and we doubt if any man who has ever seen wild pigeons would make such a mistake. And if he had never seen wild pigeons it would never occur to him to imagine that they were what he saw. A mourning dove, when flying rapidly, does sometimes somewhat resemble the passenger pigeon, but the mourning dove generally flies short distances, and is never seen in large flocks like the one Mr. Strope described. While the wild pigeon has been a minus quantity for the past thirty years, wherever man has been, it may be that they are not extinct after all.

This will be the first exhibition of this kind ever given in this part of the state.

Two separate ballots will be used in the election next fall, one for the presidential electors and the other for the state, congressional, legislative and county tickets. DIVERSITY IN FARMING.

The farmer in a hazardous business at the best. His success depends to a very large extent on the weather. Droughts or excessive rains are disastrous to him. Early frosts threaten him. As in other hazardous businesses, he must make large profits to the good years to make up for the losses of the bad years. His profits must be recorded in ten-year periods. He cannot judge from the record of one year what his profits are. Moreover, it is evident that a successful farmer must assist each other in maintaining a general average of success, so the best insurance he can have in any one season is the planting of diverse crops, the harvesting of which will take place at different seasons of the year. He can thus escape a complete calamity in the event of a storm or other natural disturbance. The man, for instance, who has made money on truck in the spring can face the loss of his cotton crop with equanimity. In the average for the year he finds things balancing up, and although he has lost the profits of the one crop in the destruction of the other, he has been insured against absolute loss on the entire year's operations. It is the capacity of the soil in this section for widely diverse crops that makes it so valuable. This is not a one-crop section. The lands are not merely good cotton lands. They are good truck lands, good orchard lands, good pasture lands. They can be made to yield wealth in a variety of ways.

A woman passed the other day on her way to Reno—regarded by those journeying thither as the fount of eternal happiness—and explained that the American husband was a bore and the educated Englishman was not. There is a certain amount of truth in what she says. When relieved of the necessity of working for the family living the Englishman has time to cultivate those graces of life which appeal so strongly to the feminine heart, says the New York Herald. But he who must work for every dollar that his wife spends has no more time to devote to social matters than he has to try to fill a stove with water. But it is not cruel to call such a man a bore and to intimate that because he is necessarily much away from home he has transferred his affections to some other quarter? If the well connected Englishman could unite with his distinguished bearing, capacity for spending and suavity of manner the money-making gifts of the American he should have a husband of the sort calculated to rob Reno of most of its business.

The latest innovation projected by Mrs. Ella Fling Young, superintendent of schools of Chicago, is the introduction of instruction in "filipino," which is another name for the art and mystery of descending scathingly from moving vehicles. The idea is that everybody who has acquired skill in this direction—irrespective of sex—will know too much to jump off a street car heading in any other direction than that in which the car is moving. Of course, before the generation that has been taught "filipino" supplants that which is now in control, a great many accidents may occur to reckless patrons. In the meantime, however, it is inexcusable that intelligent women continue to alight from street cars in such a way as to court danger.

A Pennsylvania husband put his purse in the stove for safekeeping. His wife, ignorant of the fact, started a fire, and now they are hoping the treasury department will redeem the charred remains. There are regularly chartered institutions in the business of caring for other people's money and they pay a premium for the privilege of doing so. Money hidden about the house is never safe and the people who thus hoard their funds had better put their trust and their cash in some good bank.

One of the wealthy ladies of Newport gave a dinner and dance for her domestic servants a few evenings ago. It is reported to have been a tame affair. None of the participants danced on the table or dined with one in a lower sphere of life.

A Philadelphia man was obliged to leave his mother-in-law as security for his board bill in Atlantic City. Nobody is guessing as to the haste made to get that board bill paid.

The doctors don't want the mortar and pestle on their automobile tags. That is the symbol of a druggist, they declare, and very naturally they don't care to be taken for soda water dispensers and souvenir postal card dealers.

A New Jersey woman wants a divorce because she finds bungalow life too monotonous. It is hard to tell whether some of the miseries of married life are tragedies or jokes.

A California poet wants to borrow $50 for the purpose of having his poems published in book form. It is supposed to be negotiating the loan he is going to give up the idea that no one can be a poet and a financial genius at the same time.

Perhaps the man who has invented a gun for the purpose of shooting ratators doesn't fully realize the danger of availing even under the most favorable conditions.

Earle L. Ovington has been officially named by Postmaster General Hitchcock as the first airmail carrier. Mr. Ovington will, therefore, go down in history, and we hope he will not go down in anything more destructive.

DOCTOR IS SLAIN

HELEN KNABE OF INDIANAPOLIS IS MURDERED IN HER BED.

WEAPON USED IS MISSING

Former State Bacteriologist Is Found With Her Head Nearly Severed From Body—No Motive for Crime Can Be Traced.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Dr. Helen Knabe, former state bacteriologist, was found in bed in her apartment with her head almost severed by the slash of a knife. How she came to her death is a mystery. No weapon was found in any of the rooms, nor was it apparent a robbery had been committed. The windows were closed, though the physician, who was devoted to physical culture, habitually slept with the window open.

Doctor Knabe was last seen alive by her assistant. She lived and had her office on the ground floor of an apartment house in a prosperous and quiet neighborhood. No persons, so far as has been learned, heard sounds of a struggle in Doctor Knabe's apartment.

Augusta Knabe, the physician's cousin, and the latter's stepfather, Frank Kropp, told the police that Doctor Knabe had no enemy so far as they knew. She was thirty-five years old and a graduate of the Indiana College of Medicine.

The physician recently resigned as head of the state bacteriological department because, it is said, she wished to devote her spare time to the study of hygiene and physical culture.

The police put aside the theory of suicide when they examined Doctor Knabe's body and saw that, though the throat had been slashed, there was no blood on the floor, and when a knife was found in the room. She was in her night dress.

Reports of Doctor Knabe's death were not made to the police for an hour after her body was discovered. Miss McPherson first called the physician's cousin from her home in a distant part of the city. Then Dr. Ernest C. Reyer, a friend of Doctor Knabe, was summoned. He called in the police.

COOK'S HEARERS MOB HIM
"Explorer" Is Called Swindler When He Visits the Scene of His Triumph.

Copenhagen.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, theatrical attempt to vindicate his reputation by a lecture in the hall where two years ago he addressed the royal family and some of the most prominent people of Denmark, under the auspices of the Geographical society on the occasion of his triumphant entrance into the capital, resulted in riotous scenes and a call for the police. Doctor Cook was compelled to retire by the back door.

Dr. Norman Maclean, the Danish explorer, who formerly supported Cook, started the trouble by loudly denouncing Cook as a swindler. The climax was reached when an alleged picture of the north pole was thrown upon the screen.

The audience was so hostile that Cook stopped his lecture and with drew. He was escorted by a strong detachment of police to his hotel through the side streets.

TAFT FLAYS CRITICS

SAYS ATTACKS ON SUPREME COURT ARE INSULT.

Rulings in Oil and Tobacco Cases Declared Plain Enough to Stop Restraint.

Aberdeen, S. D.—In a speech before the Aberdeen Commercial club here President Taft replied with feeling to the charge that he had set up the supreme court with the idea that it was to emasculate the Sherman antitrust law, and declared now his intention to have that law enforced to the letter.

The president referred to the criticism of the supreme court's rulings in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust cases, and said nothing could be further from the fact than the charges that the statute had been made ineffective.

The supreme court, he said, had declared that any restraint of trade or combination for the purpose of suppressing competition and controlling prices was an inhibition of the law.

"I have challenged and I challenge again," he shouted, "any person to state a case that he would consent to a violation of the antitrust law that would not be condemned under the decisions of the supreme court. As yet I have heard no reply."

"The only answer that has come has been an insult to the court and an insult to me. It is the charge that I set up the court with the purpose and understanding that it would emasculate the statute. Oh, gentlemen, there is not the slightest foundation for that."

"I am proud of the men that I have put on the court. I am proud to have found men of standing as high as they to take the places on that bench and I am willing to abide by the record that they have made and that they will make."

POSSE SEEKS EX-CONVICT
Ellsworth Authorities Believe Charles Marzky Killed 14 Persons in Three States.

Ellsworth, Kan.—The theory that one man slew 14 persons in three states within six weeks received support in a statement made by Mrs. Minnie Vopat, divorced wife of Charles Marzky.

Marzky, who is an ex-convict, is sought by the county authorities in connection with the murder of five members of the William Showman family here.

Mrs. Vopat said Marzky has been in Colorado Springs, where the Wayne and Durham families, six persons, six weeks ago were killed, and is acquainted in Monmouth, Ill., where William E. Dawson and his wife and daughter were slain recently.

As a possible connection between the Ellsworth and other tragedies, Mrs. Vopat said her former husband was convicted of forgery in Colorado Springs a few months ago. She said it was not improbable that he had been in Monmouth lately.

EDWARD HINES MAKES DENIAL
Lumberman Declares He Had Nothing to Do With Election of Senator Stephenson.

Milwaukee.—Edward Hines, the Chicago lumberman, before the Steinhilber committee, denied any and all stories which connected him with Stephenson's election, collectively and in detail.

He had never assisted in any way in the election of Senator Stephenson, nor conferred with him in any way, and he had a quarrel with R. J. Shields and never gave him money or authorized him to pay money to help elect Senator Stephenson.

Mr. Hines said that all he knew about the election of Senator Stephenson was what he had read in the newspapers.

TEN DEAD IN MINE BLAST
Coroner Orders Rigid Inquiry Into Cause of Explosion in Harrisburg (Ill.) Shaft.

Harrisburg, Ill.—A rigid investigation was ordered by the coroner into the cause of the explosion that resulted in the death of ten men and the serious injury of ten others in the O'Grady mine No. 8, a mile south of this city.

A keg of powder exploded and ignited black dust. There was a heavy blast and the roof of the mine fell. Fifteen men caught by cave-in some distance from the entrance escaped by an adjoining shaft.

That more lives were not lost was due to the fact that the shift was changing at the time of the explosion.

PRINCIPALS IN RICHESON MURDER CASE

J. R. WALSH DEAD
DEATH TAKES CHICAGO EX-BANKER EIGHT DAYS AFTER GAINING FREEDOM.

Chicago.—Eight days after his parole from Leavenworth prison, John R. Walsh, the former banker, died at his residence in this city. The certificate ascribes his death to heart failure.

Just before he was attacked he had been going over some of his papers, seeking a way to regain his foothold in the Chicago world of finance. Most of the papers in his home were receipts for the $4,000,000 he had turned over to his creditors in an effort to pay their claims, and save himself the disgrace of prison sentence.

The new lease of life which was given him on October 15, was broken after a night of strenuous battle in which his pulse at one time beat only six times a minute, and when the rally started arose to twelve beats a minute and was finally brought to normal.

The last words of Mr. Walsh as he gained his senses following the severe attack related to his possibility of fighting the battle of finance. When his pulse gained normal he gained consciousness and asked why Dr. Frank Billings was there. He realized the importance of the visit and said: "I guess I'm pretty bad. I won't be able to make the fight."

He then fell into a state of unconsciousness from which he did not awaken. The entire family was present when he died.

Before the collapse of the Chicago National bank, the Equitable Trust company and the Home Savings bank John R. Walsh was interested in many projects. The charges which sent him to prison were the result of his operations in the bank mentioned, the charges being the misappropriation of funds.

Walsh's rise from a newsboy to a factor in the railroad world, the financial world and the newspaper world, was made by hard, tedious, industrious application to his work.

He was born near Macomb, County Cork, Ireland, August 22, 1837. He was thirteen years of age when he arrived in America.

JUDGE GROSSCUP STEP OUT
Federal Jurist Closes His Judicial Career as His Resignation Becomes Effective.

Chicago.—Peter S. Grosscup is no longer a judge of the United States circuit court, as his resignation which he forwarded to President Taft became effective at once.

Immediate naming of Grosscup's successor is unlikely, as the appointment would have to await ratification at the next legislative session. More over, the fact of the bench is involved in the coming change of the circuit court's original powers and making its jurisdiction purely appellate.

CONVENTION OF STATE TEACHERS

Meeting of Wisconsin Association to Be Held in Milwaukee.

NOVEMBER NINE TO ELEVEN

Small Army of Guides and Attendants to Entertain Visiting Instructors—Prominent Men to Speak During Gathering.

Madison.—Arrangements for the convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, to be held here on November 9-11, are rapidly being completed. When the instructors begin to flock to Milwaukee from all parts of the state they will be met by a small army of guides and attendants. Bureaus covering each phase of convention activity are being established.

William F. Sell, twenty-first district school, Milwaukee, is chairman of the bureau of information to be in the lobby of the Madison hotel, where the visitors' register will be kept. Mr. Sell will have 20 uniformed guides to meet trains and to guide guests to points of interest. Eighth grade boys will act as guides. Mr. Sell will have charge of the housing of teachers, always a problem, because of the inability of the hotels to care for all who come.

Andrew C. Brown, principal of Pifteenth district school, No. 2, will be chairman of the special tours which will be conducted. With seven assistants he will conduct the tours, which have been selected with a view to aiding visitors in their work when they return to their homes. Among the places to be visited are the telephone exchange, a fire boat, Mitchell park conservatory, the federal building, a bakery, the state normal school, Milwaukee-Dowling college, Marquette university, the boys and girls' trade schools and—de light of the teachers—an ice cream factory, where each teacher will be given an ice cream cone. Sight seeing automobiles will be used for the tours.

Thomas P. Felscher, principal Second district school, has been placed in charge of the local committee. With a corps of assistants he will have charge of 31 halls in which meetings will be held. The placarding of these halls alone will be a task. There will be five sections, and twenty-nine sectional meetings.

Advance enrollment cards have been sent to all sections of the state by Superintendent J. A. Hugeney, Port Atkinson, who, with a committee of 25, has charge of registration.

Women's Convention Closes.
The fifteenth annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs came to a harmonious close at Green Bay, after it had been held for a week. A warm fight would occur on the floor of the convention over the redistricting plan.

After discussing the subject the delegates decided to put the matter up to a special committee, which will make its report at the meeting in 1912. Mrs. W. H. Crosby, president, appointed Mrs. Charles Morse, Berlin, chairman of this committee. The delegates endorsed the sentiment of a resolution pertaining to women's suffrage, but did not adopt resolutions.

The next meeting place has not yet been decided upon and it developed that four cities are now in the running for the 1912 meeting. They are: Racine, La Crosse, Eau Claire and Janesville. Eau Claire and La Crosse are the cities being considered as most probable places for the next meet.

Mrs. C. M. Caples gave a talk regarding the National Conservation congress which was recently held in St. Louis. She pointed out the fact that the delegates to the congress were from the entire state of Wisconsin, while other states of greater distance sent large numbers.

"The state of Missouri," she said, "sent 463 delegates to the convention, and far distant Alaska had a representation of 24."

The majority of the delegates are hard at work in an effort to bring about an endorsement fund of $10,000. Mrs. W. H. Crosby, state president of the federation, announced to the delegates in meeting that all of her personal expenses while traveling throughout the state during the year will be donated to this fund.

A plan was agreed upon by the delegates to have every member of the different clubs in the federation pledge themselves for $1.25, and this plan can be carried out by the raising of the $10,000 will be assured.

Mrs. Mary, the first president of the federation, announced that she would pledge the sum of $1.25 from each member of the Berlin Women's club, thus boosting the fund $225.

Public Affairs Board.
Coordination of the economic forces of the state, industrial, government and educational, is the amazing task set for itself by the Wisconsin Board of Economic Development and Education, which was organized by Governor McGovern. That the board is not dismayed at its big job is evident, however, from its action at a meeting. Plans for the work were discussed and outlined and a committee of experts and statisticians was appointed to co-operate with the board in its investigation and study of conditions.

Bankers Hear Addresses.
George D. Barlett, secretary of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, returned from the annual conference of the National Bankers' Association at Atlantic City, N. J., where he was elected president. He was elected president of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, which was organized by Governor McGovern. That the board is not dismayed at its big job is evident, however, from its action at a meeting. Plans for the work were discussed and outlined and a committee of experts and statisticians was appointed to co-operate with the board in its investigation and study of conditions.

Secretary of State J. A. French announced the state levy for taxes of the state.

The total amount to be raised is $3,567,255.55, divided as follows: State aid for the maintenance of county charges in state charitable and penal institutions, $364,244.27. Special loans to cities, $210,391.57. School district loans, $301,617.75. Interest on state indebtedness, $157,670.

Milwaukee county is assessed at $907,424.81, which is the highest apportionment in the state. Dane county is next, for $285,283.80. Florence county, having the least property valuation, is the lowest on the apportionment list, the amount being $7,708.21.

CHAPTER I.

In the Diamond Horseshoe.

A girl's scream clashed with the soprano's high note in the Jewel Song, and in a moment the Metropolitan Opera House was in confusion. The girl, half suppressed, broke the spell peculiar to "Faust" night. The somewhat portly Marguerite, her voice soaring like a cage-bird, suddenly fell, a delicate hand, her face person with the glancing stago gowns left on her scenic doorstep by the servant of devils. As the singer hung about her neck the rope of pearls with which Marguerite planned to fetter her soul, Mrs. Missioner, swinging her fan with a free motion, struck the blond girl on the forehead, and the golden thread on which the choicest of the Missioner jewels in their perforated settings were strung, snapped. Instantly most of the freed drops of frozen fire that constituted Mrs. Missioner's magnificent necklace—the one with the Maharanee diamond—were rolling on the floor of the box.

Mrs. Missioner, as the little scream broke from her throat, a delicate hand, she and taken under her arm for the evening, clutched at the few diamonds that fell into her lap. Miss March drew her skirts tightly about her ankles and shrank into a corner of the box, making room for the man who sprang to Mrs. Missioner's aid. Before another moment passed, Mrs. Missioner was on her knees, reaching for the scattered jewels with snow-gloved hands. Her face, slower of movement, bent with indignity to the task. In the next box, separated from Mrs. Missioner's only by a low velvet rail, a man of Oriental features and complexion turned to watch the scramble for the jewels. Though he did not stir from his place, his hawk-like face seemed to thrust itself into the center of the excited group.

"Continue! Continue!" the singer urged, as she bent her gaze from the box to the conductor.

"What's the matter? Go on! Go on!" the stage manager cried in undertones from the wings. Ushers in the back of the house sought to cover the confusion with ill-timed applause. The moment was big with potential tragedy. One cry of "Fire!" might have sent those thousands of startled women and men bustling along the aisles in an elemental fury of self-preservation. More prolongation of the situation without that terrible tocsin might have ended in a smaller panic. But the liquid tones of the soprano soaring again in the preludes of the Jewel Song reclaimed the attention of the audience. The conductor, evidently eager to hide his own momentary loss of poise, fairly lifted his baton through the intricacies of the accompaniment. Promptness of action by the stage manager restored order behind the scenes.

Nothing of all those incidents struck the sense of anyone in the Missioner box. All four of its occupants were concerned for the immediate recovery of the diamonds that had sprung from Mrs. Missioner's neck to her lap, and then stamped across the floor. Griswold, still on his knees, rescued the greater number. Sands, a man of action as well as of millions, picked up the larger gems. Miss March shrank further into her corner of the box, and dragged her petticoat over her head, as if to hide her face from the eyes of the world.

"Look in all the corners—look everywhere," Mrs. Missioner urged. "There's one behind the chair," she pointed.

"There's another," cried Dorothy, pointing at Griswold's feet. A glance from the dark stranger in the next box directed the searchers toward still another part of the floor, and every move was rewarded by the recovery of a gleaming stone. One by one, by twos, by threes, the diamonds were gathered, and all the search went on. Fast as they scooped them up, Sands and Griswold poured the glittering treasure into Mrs. Missioner's lap.

"Are they all there?" asked the millionaire.

"No, no," answered the widow. "There are several more. Please look again—look everywhere. Dorothy, help me count them."

Griswold and Sands renewed their search, peering into the remotest corners, pushing chairs about, looking, reaching, gasping with the zeal of Klondikers, urged again and again by the owner of the jewels.

The glittering horseshoe of the Metropolitan deserves its name. The Kamiks of Kimberly, the pearl-divers of Polynesia, the gold-seekers of the Klondike, the diggers into earth's secrets the world over toll ceaselessly to maintain the brilliance of that big jewel show. They send the diamonds and rubies and emeralds and sapphires, their pearls and opals and gold, to gleam on the heads and breasts and gowns of women whom the industry of one generation, or the stock-market luck of another, has crowned with riches. A night at the opera is a parade of the wonders of the world, and of that which, too often, goes to waste.

gone to the orchestra hurried into the box.

"I've looked thoroughly, sir," he said to Sands, "and I can't find the diamond anywhere."

"There's a good deal more than this in it for you if you find it," Griswold said, as he moved to let the usher pass, stepped backward with such abruptness as to drive his heel sharply down upon something that slipped under his tread like a peach kernel. In the very moment when Mrs. Missioner, resuming her talk with the Oriental, said, with emphasis, "I leave instructions to others that blundering heel crushed into and through the velvet carpet, crushed against the unyielding hardwood of the floor, what had been the most conspicuous diamond in all the richly jeweled casket—crushed it until only a tiny heap of pallid powder lay there, save where a great flake had slipped from the pressure and remained to betray what the little pile of dust had been.

"The Maharanee!" gasped Dorothy. The widow paled.

The light in the Oriental's eyes flared to a flame. With a smile as inscrutable as his thoughts, he leaned across the low partition, picked up a pinch of the powder and the telltale flake and laid them deferentially on Mrs. Missioner's outspread fan.

"Your maid is more cautious," he said, his smile cooling slightly, "or, it may be, your jeweler has made a mistake."

Mrs. Missioner did not faint. She only clutched the soft hand of little Miss March so tightly that the debutante with difficulty suppressed a scream. This time there was silence in the Missioner box, for Griswold, even as he began to stammer an apology for his awkwardness, let the words die on his lips as he saw the cruel pallor of the widow's face. The silence of Sands was grim, that of the Oriental savorily self-satisfied.

"Then," said Mrs. Missioner at last, "the Maharanee is gone."

Mrs. Missioner did not faint. She only clutched the soft hand of little Miss March so tightly that the debutante with difficulty suppressed a scream. She Went Straight to the Room in Which She Kept Her Jewels.

In a low, tense tone, "this is—this is—"

"Not the Maharanee diamond," replied the Oriental. "In a sense, madame, I congratulate you. She stopped him with a look. "This—this thing is—"

"Pardon me," said Sands. "I have been robbed," said Mrs. Missioner in a stifled voice. "Take me home, Bruxton."

CHAPTER II.

The Man of Action.

The conference that followed in the quiet of Mrs. Missioner's library threw no light on the mystery of the Maharanee's disappearance. Mrs. Missioner was not of the fainting type, and when she entered her Fifth Avenue home, followed by Dorothy, Sands, and Griswold, she went straight to the room in which she kept her jewels.

Mrs. Missioner herself switched on the lights to their full radiance. She hastened across the room, her opera cloak slipping from her white shoulders, and paused in front of the safe. "You don't expect to find your diamond there?" Inquired Griswold amazedly.

"Perhaps all the other stones are safe," she answered. "I am going to see how many have been stolen."

She dropped to her knees before the steel door of the bank-like vault, pulled it to the wall, and turned the nickel knob to right and left. The door, painted to harmonize with the Flemish oak of the wainscot, was ornamented with only the widow's crest. Silence held the others, as her gloved fingers whirled the little knob.

The downstairs person," she said. "These blossoms bring back memories of childhood and rekindle love of life. They silently perform a mission the human voice cannot accomplish."

Mrs. Whittemore is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Valentine Mott, one of the foremost surgeons of New York. She was reared in affluence, was a leader in social circles, and her home has been the scene of many receptions and entertainments. For thirty years, since she was married, she has devoted her life to the work of the Red Cross.

Life and wealth to aiding helpless and downcast women and girls. Discarding her costly gowns, she donned the uniform of the charity worker and sought the unfortunate.

London's Overhead Fog.

The partial fog in which certain portions of London have been submerged during the last week or two culminated yesterday in a black pall which covered the metropolis and the suburbs for a radius of from six to seven miles. It was of the variety known as the "overcast fog," blotting out the light of the sun, but bringing none of the unpleasant consequences associated with the London "particular." The air near the ground was fairly clear even when day was turned to night. As is usual in such circumstances, the atmosphere was of a "gray" density. Though there was a dead calm as far as the tops of the highest trees, currents of air higher carried the smoke pall, now in one direction, now in another. The reason was due to the curious effects produced of twilight suddenly merging into complete darkness, which was exchanged half an hour or so later for a placid dawn.

London Chronicle.

Will Be Back Soon.

"How long does your husband expect to be in New York?"

"Oh, not long. He only took $500 with him."

The door of adversity is never locked.

In vain she was known to dealers as one of the most liberal collectors in the world. She turned to a rosewood desk and took up a telephone.

"Gramercy, 9-7-4-6," she called. "The Ellingham—Mr. Ransome, please. This is Mrs. Missioner, Mr. Ransome. Yes, I am at home. Can you come up for a few minutes?"

"Thank you," and as she returned the receiver to the hook, she explained, "Ransome is the oldest expert in New York."

"While we are about it," said Sands slowly, "we may as well call headquarters." He reached for the telephone, but his hand was stayed by Dorothy's fluttering fingers.

"Oh, Bruxton," she said, "please don't call the police, and as his eyes brimmed with sweat, she added, "I am so frightened."

"You won't be hasty, Sands," said Griswold. "The newspapers follow the sleuths, you know."

"I'm not think of the newspapers," replied Mrs. Missioner. "But maybe you'd better wait for Mr. Ransome. You see," and there was perplexity in the glance that swept the group, "this is no ordinary theft."

"Not a burglary, you think?" asked Griswold quickly. He had lighted his cigarette, and, leaning back in a cozy corner of the inglenook, was smoking with little abrupt puffs that contrasted with the ease of his position. He studied the widow covertly through weaving wreaths.

"If a burglar could reach this room, I must reorganize my household," she murmured. Mrs. Missioner, who had been staring at Sands, glanced at Dorothy. Her shoulders dropped, and Sands, noticing her weariness, switched off the lights. The rainbow sparkle of the Jewel trays varied fantastically the pattern of the rug on which they lay, but the background of dusk rested her.

"And there is no one you suspect?"

"There is no one in the house I can suspect."

"You are to be congratulated," Griswold commented, with a smile directly divided between sincerity and satire. "And, of course, having such an impeccable household—"

"If I were you, Doris," Sands broke in impatiently. "I'd end for the police at once." His slow logic had carried him to the fact that even now the thief might be on the road to escape. Little Miss March, glanced at him admiringly. Swift or slow with the man of action appears.

"I think Mr. Sands is right, Mrs. Missioner," she said softly. "It might be at first, but Bruxton knows." "Advise me," said the widow, her satin slipper tap-tapping the fender of burnished brass. "I am not feeling when I say I am in the hands of my friends. All this is more than puzzling."

"Puzzling!" echoed Dorothy. "It's a mystery—and it's all very dreadful, too." Sands looked at her, smiling. There was eloquence in those rare smiles of his, much more than in his speech. Not without cause did Wall Street know him as "Silent" Sands.

"Why not a private detective?" Griswold suggested. "It is the best way to recover stolen property."

"Mr. Ransome, no, no, no," said a footman of conventional pattern stood on the threshold as if on a pedestal and looked at Mrs. Missioner from a carved face.

"Let him come up, Blodgett," she responded. The carved features blimmed into the background. A round little man with the face of a dreamer and the eyes of a student entered, adjusted his toes. Mrs. Missioner greeted him pleasantly, and as she pressed the button that filled the room with light again, she presented him to her friends. "Mr. Ransome," she added, "is an expert of experts."

Briefly the widow recounted the accident in the opera box, the discovery of the supposed Maharanee diamond's worthlessness, and her suspicion as to the other stones of her necklace. During her recital Ransome's glance wandered to the gems in the scattered trays, and it was by a visible effort that he wrested his eyes from them to look at the stones on the table.

"Are they real?" asked the widow. The little man seemed not to hear her.

"Did you say, madam, the Maharanee diamond?"

"Yes," she answered, and waves of pain rippled across her face. "Oh, Mrs. Ransome, I think it is—think of it!" She clasped her hands and pressed the rings upon them bit her flesh. "Think of it, Mr. Ransome!"

"The Maharanee," he murmured, rather, groaned in an undertone. "A glorious jewel, a wonderful jewel, a queen's jewel! Gave, did you say? Absolutely gone—not a trace of it!"

With the flat of his hand, he spread the smaller stones on the table, stroking their gloss with sensitive fingers. He held them up to the light, then, with a dramatic gesture, smeared the gleaming pile broadcast across the board.

"None," replied the widow. "And those?"

"These, Mrs. Missioner," the expert said, as if winking from a dream, "are the most beautiful imitations I have ever seen."

Sands reached for the telephone again.

CHAPTER III.

A Searching Examination.

When the millionaire stopped talking over the telephone, he turned to the widow with an air of finality.

"I have taken it on myself," he told her, "to inform the Detective Bureau. This is no time for Sherlocking. There'll be a couple of detectives here in half an hour. They'll examine the rectangle in which the big door fitted as thoroughly."

EXCUSABLE.

Judge—You should have known better than drive fast while crossing this bridge; didn't you see the sign "Walk your horses?"

Prisoner—That's right, Judge; but don't you see the sign "Walk your horses?"

The Very Worst.

Clement J. Driscoll, at a dinner in New York, told a number of amusing stories about his strenuous life as commissioner of weights and measures last year.

"A friend of mine," said Mr. Driscoll, "noticed one morning that his grocer looked very sad. 'What's the matter, old man?' my friend asked jokingly. 'The weights and measures man hasn't been dropping in on you, I hope?'"

"Yes, he has," snapped the grocer. "But you don't really mean to say," exclaimed my friend, "that he caught you giving only fifteen ounces to the pound?"

"Worse than that!" groaned the grocer. "I've been given seventeen!"

Salve to Conscience.

It was at a concert, without the removal of hats was not obligatory, still the woman with a conscience wished to be accommodating. She turned to the woman sitting beside her and said:

"Does my hat bother you?"

"Not in the least," said the other woman, "but my conscience is so conscience-stricken that I can't back to listen to the music while persons on the back seats twisted their necks out of joint trying to see around her hat."

Association of Ideas.

"You have a great many flies and mosquitos," said the rather supercilious girl.

"Yes," replied Farmer Cottontail. "I don't like to mention it, but I've noticed every year that flies, mosquitos and summer boarders all appear to be on hand at the same time."

His Losses.

"What did you lose on that wrestling match?"

"About nine-tenths of my respect for the human race."

SHIFT

If Your Food Fails to Sustain You, Change.

One sort of diet may make a person despondent, depressed and blue and a change to the kind of food the body demands will change the whole thing. A young woman from Philadelphia, says: "For several years I kept in a run-down, miserable sort of condition, was depressed and apprehensive of trouble. I lost flesh in a distressing way and seemed in a perpetual sort of dreary nightmare. No one serious disease showed, but the 'all-over' ailment was enough."

"Finally, between the doctor and father, I was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, as it was decided I must have a nourishing food that the body could make use of."

"During the first week I gained weight; my spirits improved, and the world began to look brighter and more worth while."

"And this has continued steadily, till now, after the use of Grape-Nuts for only a few weeks, I am perfectly well, feeling lively, taking a lively interest in everything, and am a changed person in every way." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Flowers Prevent Suicide

Missionary Says Roses and Carnations Have Saved Downcast From Self-Destruction.

Flowers are the most pervasive influence in preventing suicide, in the opinion of Mrs. E. M. Whittemore of New York, founder of the Door of Hope, through which more than 5,000 women and girls have passed. She is manager of the women's branch of the anti-suicide department of the Salvation Army in New York. Suicide is not an evidence of insanity, but the result of a detailed plan formed when the victim's condition in life becomes unbearable, according to Mrs. Whittemore.

"Pink roses and white carnations are the most effective flowers in shattering that plan by reaching the remaining spark of love in the heart of the downcast person," she said. "These blossoms bring back memories of childhood and rekindle love of life. They silently perform a mission the human voice cannot accomplish."

Mrs. Whittemore is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Valentine Mott, one of the foremost surgeons of New York. She was reared in affluence, was a leader in social circles, and her home has been the scene of many receptions and entertainments. For thirty years, since she was married, she has devoted her life to the work of the Red Cross.

Costumes of Fish Skins

Among the most wonderful garments worn at the present day are the curious fish-skin costumes of the wealthy women of the Gold tribe, living along the Amazon river, East of Brazil. Though they can neither read nor write, these people are producing astonishing ornaments, designs and embroidery work.

The dress is composed of several layers of fish skin, the bottom layer being the skin of a large fish, and the top layer being the skin of a small fish. The layers are sewed together, and the result is a garment that is both beautiful and durable.

Two Dominant Instincts

Two dominant instincts are controlling the life of the modern man. Both of them are hereditary and essential. The one is the instinct to make the most of one's self, to live for one's self, to be a success. The other is the instinct to make the most of one's fellow-men, to live for the benefit of the world, to be a benefactor.

No more letters to Santa Claus are to be delivered by the postal department, according to orders just issued in Washington, and hereafter the fervid and trusting appeals of thousands of little hearts, telling Santa what to bring will be ruthlessly cast into a pile and later sent to the dead letter office. The practice has been for years for postmasters to turn these tender missives over to some local church or charitable organization which would assume the role of Santa Claus to the little folks making the appeals, but your Uncle Samuel is putting aside sentiment and getting down to a cold business policy. It's not nearly as much work to deliver these letters to a local organization as to send them to the dead letter office, say postal employees, and is less expensive to the government. Yet orders are orders and must be obeyed.

The Youths Companion is For Everybody.
Of course if you are too young to read, or so old you have forgotten how, you may not enjoy The Youths Companion. That is rather a sweeping statement, however, for hosts of children love to have the stories and jingles of the Children's Page read to them. There is many a grandfather and grandmother whose eyes are dim who like nothing better than to sit and listen to the Companion stories and articles. Many a blind person, and even those who in addition can neither speak nor hear have been cheered by The Companion, its contents having been communicated to them through the finger tips of friends. The reading of The Companion is a pretty sure cure for all kinds of loneliness. Robinson Crusoe would have been a happier man if he could have had his Companion. Thursday as well as his man Friday. Just send for the Prospectus for 1912 and sample copies of the paper.

We think you will agree, when you have read them, that no other paper gives quite so much of such a high quality as The Companion, and it costs only $1.75 now for the 63 weekly issues. On January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

The new subscriber receives a gift of The Companion's Calendar for 1912 in ten colors and gold, and all the remaining issues of 1911 free from the time the subscription is received.

FROM NEARBY PLACES.

Amherst. Advocates.—A potato weighing four and one-half pounds is very unusual in this vicinity, but a tuber weighing this amount was displayed about town the latter part of the week by Dell Maberg. Only a few potatoes of this size would be required to make a bushel, but they would be rather big for a good seller. This tuber is about as large as it seems possible for them to grow. Can anybody beat it?

Marshfield News.—Fred Vollmar of Vollmar & Below company, Marshfield, was appointed Thursday morning by the acting circuit judge, Judge O'Neill, as receiver for the Vesper Safety Clevis & Malleable Iron company. He assumes his new duties immediately. The appointment was a surprise to some of the stockholders, as a circular letter had been sent out by the officers of the company asking creditors to join in a petition for the appointment of George H. Welton as receiver, and in the absence of any other nominees many of the creditors recommended Mr. Welton.

New London Press.—A train load of cabbages are being shipped out of Shiocton every day. Thursday fifteen cars went out and the average for the past week has been twelve cars. This does not mean all the cabbage that has been marketed, however. Tons and tons have been placed in the storages there and many farmers who are storages of their own are filling them. The price paid last week was $7.00 to $7.50 per ton and prospects are that if the weather turns cooler that the price will go up to $8.00. The price has ruled steadier this season and as good as it ever has before.

New Lisbon Times.—Sunday morning, upon his arrival at the station here, an engineer on the Milwaukee road reported the discovery of a human body along the railroad tracks about one mile east of the city. Investigation made, the lifeless body of a man was found, brought to this city and placed in charge of undertaker L. G. Gray. Unfortunately there is little means of revealing his identity as all that was found about his person was a couple of post cards, addressed, a sack of coffee and five cents in money. In all probability the man had been struck or fell from an east bound train. His limbs were completely severed from the body and he was otherwise injured. On the following morning an inquest was held before Justice N. M. Hess, the findings of the jury being in accordance with above facts. He was about thirty-five years of age. Mr. Gray prepared the body in good shape and it was placed in the potter's field in the New Lisbon cemetery.

Rhineland New North.—The saw mill of the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company at Hazelhurst has completed its final out and is now closed permanently. This means that within a short time the village will be depleted of its population. Already several families have located elsewhere. The box factory of the company is still in operation and it is announced that it will be at least nine months before the concern will wind up its affairs and leave the village. The company has large lumber interests in the south and many of the old employees at Hazelhurst and Arbor Vitae will move to that country. While Hazelhurst as a lumber town will cease to exist it is rumored that the place will be converted into a big summer resort. Among the future possibilities in this respect is a luxurious hotel which may be erected by Chicago men. A number of private resorts and cottages are also contemplated. The village is beautifully situated in the heart of the fish and game region and will doubtless become the mecca for hundreds of city people, who annually go northward in quest of sport and recreation.

The Traveling Salesman.
The Traveling Salesman at the opera house on Monday evening did not pull as large a crowd as was expected it would, although it was a good little show with a number of humorous sayings and situations in it and enough pathos to relieve the monotony. The parts were all well taken and everybody seemed to be well pleased with the show.

The next attraction will be on Friday evening of this week when the Sunny Side of Broadway will be presented. This is a musical production.

A DRUGGIST'S FAVORITE KIDNEY REMEDY—CURED HIMSELF.

Fifteen years ago I had an attack of acute kidney trouble. I consulted a physician who gave me medicine which only relieved me for a time. After discontinuing his medicine my trouble returned as severe as before. Having heard of Swamp-Root I gave it a trial and can honestly state that three dollar bottles cured me, never having any sickness in fifteen years. I have sold Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as a druggist for many years and can give the very best of recommendations at all times.

ALMOST CRAZY WITH ECZEMA

"I, the undersigned, cannot give enough praise to the Cuticura Remedies. I had been doctoring for at least a year for eczema on my foot. I had tried doctor after doctor all to no avail. When a young girl I sprained my ankle three different times, paying little or no attention to it, when five years ago a small spot showed upon my left ankle. I was worried and sent for a doctor. He said it was eczema. He drew a small oval from the ankle about the size of a match and about an inch long. The small hole grew to about the size of an apple, and the eczema spread to the knee. The doctors never could heal the hole in the ankle. The whole foot ran water all the time.

"My husband and my sons were up night and day wheeling me from one room to another in the hope of giving me some relief. I would sit for hours at a time in front of the fireplace hoping for daybreak. The pain was so intense I was almost crazy. In fact, I would lose my reason for hours at a time. One day a friend of mine dropped in to see me. No more had she glanced at my foot than she exclaimed: 'Mrs. Finnegan, why in the world don't you try the Cuticura Remedies?' Being disgusted with the doctors and their medicines, and not being able to sleep at all, I decided to give the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment a trial. After using them three days that night I slept as sound as a silver dollar for eight long hours. I awoke in the morning with but very little pain. In fact, I thought I was in heaven. After using the Cuticura Remedies for three months I was perfectly restored to health. I wrote to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, I will be sixty-four years of age my next birthday, hale and hearty at present." (Signed) Mrs. Julia Finnegan, 2224 Hebert St., St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 12, K. Boston.

Daniel Fahrenheit.
In view of the abnormal weather which we have had this summer we think a tribute of respect should be paid to the memory of Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, who was born on September 16, either in 1735 or 1740. It is hard to say which. Before his day several attempts had been made to measure the heat level, not the heat, by tubes containing oil of various colors. But it was by a bankrupt merchant of Danzig to show how the feat could be successfully accomplished.

The first thermometers were made with spirits of wine; but the ingenious Gabriel soon adopted mercury as his medium, and it has remained to this day. His instruments speedily became known throughout the world, and though a more rational method of graduation has since been adopted, the popular mind still clings to the Fahrenheit scale. Our own Royal society thought highly of this humble inventor and acknowledged his genius by making him one of its fellows. To the "Transactions" of the society he contributed several papers.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Grapefruit Greenery.
Effective greenery for the dining room table may be made by planting the seeds of grapefruit. The Great Bullion Robbery

An Episode in the Life of Inspector Sweeney of Scotland Yard.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

ON September morning several decades ago, when the express officials lifted out the bullion which had been brought to Boulogne by way of the Southampton railway, they noticed that the bags were not quite as heavy as usual. They were opened and found to contain nothing but shot. Three hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of gold had mysteriously disappeared in the journey between London and Boulogne.

The amazing part of it was that almost superhuman means had been taken to protect the precious dust. The gold was sent in the guards' van, packed in iron boxes, each of which was deposited in a safe with a Chubb lock. The safes each had two locks, and naturally there was a separate key for each one. These keys were in triplicate and were in the possession of the trusted officers of the company. One set was kept by the traffic superintendent in London, another by the head of the Folkestone railway office, and the third by the captain of the Folkestone-Boulogne boat.

Each of these men was beyond suspicion. They were all willing to swear that the bags had been sealed in the usual form, duly fastened and locked. How had the shot been substituted for the gold? And where? No one could answer those questions. It seemed like black magic.

James Sweeney of Scotland Yard was put on the case, and associated with him were a number of the best detectives in England. The investigation first visited the railway office at Folkestone and made a careful examination of the place of origin of the gold. It was found that the gold had been carried in the guards' van it was plain that the robbery would be easy when Burgess was on guard. The question was how to open the safes. The answer was to place the safes in the real keys in order to make the dupli-

Two things could be done. One was to arrest Agar at once and depend upon getting his assistance in bringing his pals to justice. The other was to shadow him in the hope of securing additional evidence that would result in recovering some of the gold and rounding up the gang. The second course was agreed upon. So a close espionage was kept upon the skilful and gentlemanly Mr. Agar with the intention of ultimately taking him into custody.

Just as the police were ready to pounce down upon the fellow, he upset all of their plans. He committed a fresh crime. And it was of a character that could not be ignored. He was caught uttering forged checks, and in wholesale quantities. An army of sharpshooters went after him and he was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to transportation for life. The detectives who had been after him for the great bullion robbery tried to get him to make a confession of that affair, but he only smiled and remarked that he had nothing to say for publication. They even tried, in a mild sort of way, the kind of persuasion that we call the third degree, but it was of no use. Agar shut up like a clam, merely saying that he was ready to take his punishment for the forged

This fellow was employed in the Traffic department at London Bridge. He entered into the scheme with avidity. He reported to his pals that there were times when the safes were left open for repairs, and that on those occasions, one of the keys was sent with the safes. Such an occasion arose very soon, and then Testor cleverly managed to abstract one of the keys; but there was still an impediment to the complete success of the conspiracy. As each of the safes had two locks, and the key to but one was sent to Chubb's, it was the second key that baffled Testor's best and worst efforts.

But what they failed to get by shrewdness came singularly enough by chance. One of the second keys was time, was a clerk in a bucket shop. He had been concerned in several shady transactions and the possibility of the gold train appealed to him very strongly. But it was too big a job for him to undertake alone. So he sought the professional advice and assistance of Agar. That gentleman seized the suggestion with avidity. The first step necessary was to win over one of the employees of the company. So they approached one of the guards named Burgess, who was usually in charge of the trains carrying the gold. He fell in with the scheme and explained the methods of transportation.

As the gold was carried in the guards' van it was plain that the robbery would be easy when Burgess was on guard. The question was how to open the safes. The answer was to place the safes in the real keys in order to make the dupli-

AT REDHILL TESTOR WAS HANDING A PORTION OF THE GOLD.

Agar, who was in Newgate, heard how Pierce had mistreated Mrs. Kay and he eagerly turned state's evidence. As a consequence of this, Pierce, Burgess, Testor and several others were arrested, convicted and sentenced to life terms in prison. The company only recovered a very small portion of the stolen money.

This true story points a moral that will not be overlooked by the discriminating reader. It is that crime, even viewed from a sordid, worldly standpoint, does not pay. Pierce and Agar had already spent many years in jail and their final crime meant that the remainder of their existence should be lived out behind prison bars. Every one of the Southern railway suffered life-long scars—scars that might have healed, but that nevertheless left their mark on the victim.

Students of criminology are unanimous in the belief that crime is the least profitable of all human undertakings. "Easy money" seems to carry its own punishment. Even though the crook makes what he calls a "get away," he suffers constantly from the fear of detection. That comes sooner or later and then comes the misery of arrest and the haunting fear that mother or wife may be in want or suffering. Attempts to care for them with ill-gotten money usually ends as did the Pierce-Agar compact. Honesty, therefore, is not only the best, but the most comfortable policy.

PRETTY POLLY PAPERS

Dear Girls: Isn't it heavenly weather? Too beautifully, light-heartedly June to ever be anything else, it would seem. We know better, but we don't feel so. And sometimes "feels" are better than "wishes." I wonder how many girls know the secret of keeping bonny drawers in order? It is simply this: Have a box for everything and everything in its box. The covers of the boxes may be discarded or not, just as you like, but ribbons folded in a box do not overlap glove territory, and bolts do not have to put up a sign "no handkerchiefs allowed on this property." Two long boxes (corset boxes, perhaps) are good for gloves and belts, and another box for purses and other trifles and all the dainty feminine "things" that are "everything really," for we couldn't live without them!

Girls' club I know of had promised to make a large number of paper roses of different colors to decorate a church fair booth. This seemed like a big undertaking, but one of the girls had a brilliant inspiration and made the task into a pleasure for all concerned. She invited the club members to her house for a "Progressive Rose Party." One table had a red cloth, one a pink cloth, one a yellow cover and one was white. The tables were designated where flowers of a like hue were to be made. The white roses were made on the white table, the pink roses on the pink table, the yellow roses on the yellow table, and the red roses on the red table. The girls who had made the most red roses progressed to the pink table, and so on. Tally cards cut in the shape of a white rose were used, with small pink rose pasters. When the work was done the goodies were served in pink and white cases on pink and white dishes, and didn't those pink and white maidens have an appetite? The best work, or received as a reward a little silver rose pin—and it won't fade unless she loses it!

Now that hats are such an expensive part of one's wardrobe, an girl has told me her way, and really she is too clever for words. She makes one hat for several occasions. She has a medium-sized black straw hat and a large white hat with "adjustable trimmings." Wreaths of flowers have inner bands, sewed to them with little patent "snaps" (used to fasten dresses) on these, the under parts of the snap being sewed to the hat itself. A long plume offers the same possibility, while bows of several kinds and different shapes and hues can do duty when required. Progress is made by the girl's foundation same way in winter. Her foundation hat may have a turban of black velvet with a black velvet crown and bow on one side. This whole crown can be doubled to fasten over the bookman crown which can be substituted when one wears gray, for an afternoon, or calling. Also a violet silk crown with knots of artificial violets and leaves peeping from the folds which can be worn to reception with a lavender dress.

You can make fascinating curtains and hangings for your rooms, girls, and use the white crepe material often used for shirt waists, which requires no ironing. A pretty white fringe that is washable can be attached along the edges of both curtains and spreads.

WHEN JOHNNY CAN'T HEAR

Boy at Play is Always Deaf When His Mother is Calling Him.

"Johnny!" That was his mother calling from a window and Johnny playing in the street, but Johnny didn't hear her.

And then—

"Johnny! Come here." But Johnny is at this moment reaching up to catch a high ball and his ears are closed to all calls; whereupon—

"Johnny, do you hear me?" But Johnny doesn't. He has caught that ball and now he is holding it to another boy standing by a tree. So, now—

"Johnny!" this time with a little suggestion of a whisper.

And does that open Johnny's ears? Why, he's at the bat now and prepared to hit the ball with a swat that will send it half way down the block, and all things else are as naught to him. But now hear the vigilant mother this time gently, for she knows that boys will be boys:

"Johnny, I want you to come in now."

Johnny is at this moment running like a wild man, or boy, making for that tree he was throwing at a moment ago and utterly oblivious of everything in the world, the parental voice fades. But that cleaves the air again now:

"Johnny!" Johnny is standing with one foot at the root of the tree and the other foot extended, all ready to jump and run when the boy at the bat hits the ball.

"Johnny!" And Johnny runs like all possessed, not for home, but for the base, and there he stands, while from the window comes the voice.

A Broken Bone.
Your first duty, after notifying a surgeon, is to provide support for the injured member in the form of an improvised splint. Flat pieces of board, as broad, if possible, as the limb and slightly longer than the broken bone, canes, umbrellas, in fact anything that will accomplish your end may be used.

In adjusting these, pad with any soft material that is at hand; straw, leaves or cushions made of grass may be used. Avoid any pressure on the injured part; cover it with a cloth, and keep wet with clean, cold water. Woman's Home Companion.

If You Have a Sickly Youngster Try This Free

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the mother should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, of course, but in the majority of instances, a mother's knowledge of the child's condition, and a few simple remedies, will often cure the trouble. There is no remedy in giving a child a remedy containing arsenic, or any other poisonous substance, or a remedy that is not a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative, tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which cleanses the bowels and strengthens the little stomach muscles, with immediate effect.

It is not alone my opinion, but that of Mrs. N. E. Mead of Preport, Kan., successfully treated her child, a son, who was given to her by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She writes: "I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for my child's ailment, and it has cured him. I have used it for my child's ailment, and it has cured him. I have used it for my child's ailment, and it has cured him."

For the free trial, send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell, 151 Caldwell Building, Monticello, N.Y.

DEEP MYSTERY OF THE LAW

Man Who Won't Support Family is Imprisoned and Wife Really Pays Penalty.

Mysteries, far beyond the comprehension of the average mortal, are constantly revealed in the law and its administration. The other day a much-harassed woman appeared in a Boston court and complained to the judge that her husband refused to support their two small children. She could get along without him, she said, but she demanded that he be compelled to go to work and help support their offspring. Her story was corroborated by witnesses.

So the judge found the man guilty and sentenced him to one year in the house of correction.

Here was what seems on the surface to be an easy problem. A husband and father, after all, through default or through inability to do work, is brought into court on a charge of non-support. In order to relieve the situation, he is sent to the house of correction where he will be kept at work. That is not to send him to an envelope home to his family every Saturday night because he is not a very amiable man.

In the eyes of the law, a minor circumstance. The main thing seems to be that the man has been guilty of an offense and that he is punished for it. He is punished, but his wife and his two helpless children who may be the penalty

The law may be logical, but it has no sense of humor. "You have been guilty of not supporting your children," it says, "and therefore I will send you where you cannot support them."

Martyrs of Science.

The technical World Magazine, some months ago, contained the following incident of men who have sacrificed life in the interest of science. The men who are experimenting today, in the field of aviation, are engaged in a work as hazardous, and when a tragedy occurs, people are free to criticize the men who are attempting to solve the problem, as they are to criticize the men who are attempting to solve the problem.

This sort of criticism is unjust, for the secrets of science are so carefully concealed that they never come to the surface except through human effort inspired by faith and determination which recognizes no obstacles. These are the kind of men who are experimenting in the field of aviation, and this is the story:

"If peace hath her victories no less renowned than war, then Dr. K. Kassabian, who died in Philadelphia on July 12, was a hero perhaps of even greater caliber than the heroes of many wars. For Dr. Kassabian died of skin cancer brought on by X-ray burns in his unrelenting work as one of the foremost specialists in America.

"For years, unknown to many thousands of sufferers he was treating Dr. Kassabian, slowly dying from the effects of the very rays that were being directed by him to the cure of others, went about his daily work.

"Last year it was found that the skin cancer induced by the rays had spread up the left arm and had caused the enlargement of the glands under his arm. These glands were removed by operation by Dr. Chalmers D. Costa, professor of surgery in the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. The wounds did not heal and a second operation, consisting of the removal of the larger muscles on the left side of the chest, was performed four months ago.

"After this operation on the pectoral muscles it was found that the whole left side had been affected and his condition was pronounced critical. About ten days before his death he went to the hospital to have his chest dressed, and while there collapsed. He never left the hospital alive.

"The fact of the matter is that the field of radio activity has furnished more than its quota of martyrs to science. Professor Curie, who with his wife, Madame Curie, won a place in the history of science by the discovery of radium, was perhaps saved from a martyr's lingering death by the street accident which cut short his life. His journey to London with the first tube of radium ever exhibited there resulted in a wound in the chest which took months to heal, for the radium emanation passed through his waistcoat and underclothes and burned his chest to the bone. His experiments with radium scorched his hands and arms which were almost paralyzed to the elbows and rendered unrepresentable to strangers."

—Janesville Gazette.

Praise for State and University of Wisconsin.

"Governor Stubbs of Kansas and Chancellor Strong of the Kansas University are engaging in a duely constructive work for Kansas in their undertaking to co-ordinate the state and the school after the manner of the Wisconsin plan. With other state officials and university teachers the governor and the chancellor are going soon to visit that remarkable institution at Madison, Wis., the institution which is half university and half state and is all efficient government.

"Early last December The Star described in a number of articles how the University of Wisconsin takes knowledge out to the people; how it co-operates with the state on legislative and administrative boards and in boards of inquiry; how it exports the facts and the principles on which laws are drafted; how these best equipped men enter the social service in the cities of Wisconsin and teach the farmers and the farmers' wives and the boys and girls of the farms and small towns how to get the best money value and the best social value out of their ways of living.

"All this has developed into what may be justly described as the best work for a well balanced civilization that is doing in America today. And one finds in Madison the most inspirational and hopeful atmosphere that can be found anywhere. There is the very finest evidence of conscious citizenship in Wisconsin that can be imagined.

"Now, by all natural rights Kansas has more to be proud of than Wisconsin has. Its people have certainly as much right to take pride in their citizenship and to assist their daily proprietorship in the affairs of the commonwealth. So Mr. Stubbs and Dr. Strong should be able to count on the most loyal support of all the Kansas people in their efforts to create for them the same university and state institution of efficient democracy which the Wisconsin state and university have built up."

Estray Notice.

Used the Wrong Word.

Speaking of the visit of Woodrow Wilson to that city the Madison Democrat said: "Today Madison welcomes with cordiality and enthusiasm a prospective president of the republic." The same sentence with the word "possible" in place of "prospective" would have been much nearer the truth. There are safer Democrats for president than Mr. Wilson. Harmon of Ohio or Clark of Missouri, for instance. And there are scores of Republicans who are safer than any of them.—Stevens Point Journal.

We wonder just what our contemporary over at Stevens Point means by the word "safe."

Is it a man who can be depended upon to do the thing that will benefit the mortals interests down New York way, when he does anything at all, and to keep still as a mouse on any subject that will be a benefit to the working class.

We have a man in office who is perfectly "safe" if viewed from this standpoint. He is so "safe," in fact, that a large majority of the people of the United States have made up their minds not to give him another chance to demonstrate his ability along this line. He seems to realize the fact, too, judging by his efforts during the past few months.

As the Journal man says, there are many republicans who are "safe." We know this to be a fact, for several of them have held office in the past, and some of them are still at it. However, the "safe" kind is getting less all the time and we opine that fewer of them will hold office in the future.

His Popularity.

Meridian Herald, Pa. Rep.
"Taft is popular in Wisconsin," says a Milwaukee paper, and the Republican vote reflected in 1908. That was before Taft read and read all the Progressive Republicans out of the party.

If the president is re-nominated he will get just the votes of the "Taft Republicans" next year.

The number of "Taft Republicans" in Wisconsin is represented by the vote that Hon. S. A. Cook received for senator when he was a candidate against Senator LaFollette. Mr. Cook received 40,000, and they were not all "Taft Republicans" either. Mr. Cook having a host of friends among the G. A. B. boys throughout the state.

If Taft is the Republican nominee for president next year, Wisconsin will give its electoral vote to the Democratic candidate for president by a majority of more than 160,000.

Dug Drilled Wells Very Dangerous.

Almost any community in which wells have been drilled one must of a number of combination dug and drilled wells. The owners congratulate themselves on their wisdom in utilizing an old dug well fifteen, twenty, or thirty feet in depth, and drilling through the bottom of this to a good flow of water. The cost of drilling is about twenty or thirty feet has been saved, certainly an economy worth considering. As a matter of fact, this combination dug and drilled well is a particularly dangerous type. It may readily breed malarial fever or even typhoid fever, which is prevalent in the country than even in the overcrowded cities. In spite of the supposed pure water supply of nearly all farming sections. Such a well is all the more dangerous because it is so easily made safe. Although the water encountered by the deep well may be perfectly pure at the start, contamination may take place almost immediately by the entrance, especially after rains, of sewage water into the open well and thence into the casing of the drilled well. The remedies are obvious. Either the casing should be carried to the surface of the outside ground, or at least above the highest level ever reached by the water, or the open well should be converted into a water tight system by applying a thick coating of cement over both sides and bottom.

Quills are things that are sometimes taken from the pinions of one goose to spread the opinions of another.

PITTSVILLE.

(From the Record.)

The basement barn of John Nimm, northeast of this city, burned to the ground Sunday afternoon. The loss also included a woody number of tons of hay that Mr. Nimm had stored for the winter feeding and other articles such as harnesses, etc. There was no stock loss. The fire originated while a number of small boys were playing in and around the barn, and while it is not known definitely it is supposed they were playing with matches. Later advice from John Nimm farm state that the two little boys deliberately started a fire on the barn floor, thinking it too cold to make a fire out of doors. The flames soon got beyond their control.

Cabbages have been coming into the city at a lively rate the past two weeks. The crop is exceptionally good this fall, the cabbages being big, well rounded and solid. The extra wide boards on the wagon are used for the haul to the warehouses here and a ton and a half, net weight of cabbage, seems to be the popular load. Cabbage hereabouts is bringing from $3.50 to $7.50 per acre, and Mr. Clark, the warehouse man, seems to think he will not make this year than in years past. He has storing capacity for over three hundred tons.

No more letters to Santa Claus are to be delivered by the postal department, according to orders just issued in Washington, and hereafter the fervid and trusting appeals of thousands of little hearts, telling Santa what to bring will be ruthlessly cast into a pile and later sent to the dead letter office. The practice has been for years for postmasters to turn these tender appeals over to some local church or charitable organization which would assume the role of Santa Claus to the little folks making the appeals, but your Uncle Samuel is putting aside sentiment and getting down to a cold business policy. It's not nearly as much work to deliver these letters to a local organization as to send them to the dead letter office, say postal employees, and is less expensive to the government, yet "orders are orders and must be obeyed."

FROM NEARBY PLACES.

Amherst Advocate:—A potato weighing four and one-half pounds is very unusual in this vicinity, but a tuber weighing this amount was displayed about town the latter part of the week by Dell Moberg. Only a few potatoes of this size would be required to make a bushel, but they would be rather big for a good seller. This tuber is about as large as it seems possible for them to grow. Can anybody beat it?

Marshfield News:—Fred Vollmar of Vollmar & Below company, Marshfield, was appointed Thursday morning by the acting circuit judge, Judge O'Neill, as receiver for the Vesper Safety Clevis & Mallenbale Iron company. He assumes his new duties immediately. The appointment was a surprise to some of the stockholders, as a circular letter had been sent out by the officers of the company asking creditors to join in a petition for the appointment of George H. Walton as receiver, and in the absence of any other nominees many of the creditors recommended Mr. Walton.

New London Press:—A train load of cabbages are being shipped out of Shiocton every day. Thursday fifteen cars went out and the average for the past week has been twelve cars. This does not mean all the cabbage that has been marketed, however. Tons and tons have been placed in the storages there and many farmers who are storing of their own are filling them. The price paid last week was $7.00 to $7.50 per ton and prospects are that if the weather turns cooler that the price will go up to $8.00. The price has held steady this season and as good as it ever has before.

New Lisbon Times:—Sunday morning, upon his arrival at the station here, an engineer on the Milwaukee road reported the discovery of a human body along the railroad tracks about one mile east of the city. Investigation made, the lifeless body of a man was found, brought to this city and placed in charge of undertaker J. O. Gray. Unfortunately there is little means of revealing his identity as all that was found about his person was a couple of post cards, undrawn, a sack of coffee and five cents in money. In all probability the man had been struck or fell from an east bound train. His limbs were completely severed from the body and he was otherwise injured. On the following morning an inquest was held before Justice N. M. How, the findings of the jury being in accordance with above facts. He was about thirty-five years of age. Mr. Gray prepared the body to good shape and it was placed in the potter's field in the New Lisbon cemetery.

Rhineland New North:—The saw mill of the Yawkey-Bissell Lumber Company at Hazelhurst has completed its final cut and is now closed permanently. This means that within a short time the village will be depleted of its population. Already several families have located elsewhere. The box factory of the company is still in operation and it is announced that it will be at least nine months before the concern will wind up its affairs and leave the village. The company has large lumber interests in the south and many of the old employees at Hazelhurst and Arbor Vitae will move to that country. While Hazelhurst, as a lumber town will cease to exist it is rumored that the place will be converted into a big summer resort. Among the future possibilities in this respect is a luxurious hotel which may be erected by Chicago men. A number of private resorts and cottages are also contemplated. The village is beautifully situated in the heart of the fish and game region and will doubtless become the mecca for hundreds of city people, who annually go northward in quest of sport and recreation.

Two Games of Football.

A good crowd turned out on Saturday afternoon to witness the two games of football between the first and second teams of this city and the first and second teams of Wausau.

The game between the first teams resulted in a victory for Wausau, the score being 9 to 0, while the second teams tied by a score of 0 to 0.

The Traveling Salesman.

The Traveling Salesman at the opera house on Monday evening did not pull as large a crowd as was expected it would, altho it was a good little show with a number of humorous sayings and situations in it and enough pathos to relieve the monotony. The parts were all well taken and everybody seemed to be well pleased with the show.

The next attraction will be on Friday evening of this week when the Sunny Side of Broadway will be presented. This is a musical production.

Couldn't Sell His Place

Frequently you hear of a man who had a sale of his property about completed when some defect was found in the title and the buyer wouldn't take property.

An Abstract of Title is a complete history of the transfers of property by deeds and mortgages from the time of the Government ownership. An Abstract of Title will show whether the title to any particular piece of property is good, or whether mistakes exist in the drawing of the papers or whether or not there are any breaks in the title.

Get an Abstract of Title to your property, have it examined by a competent attorney, and if any mistakes or breaks exist, have them perfected so you can sell without any delay.

NOTES From MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Pure water is essential.

The reason for cutting the flock is at hand.

Words and strawberries are incombustible.

Starter for butter may be propagated from day to day.

Do not be stingy in the use of clean straw for bedding.

The sheep is more at home on the open pasture than among the fences.

Remove the seeds from the pumpkins before feeding them to the cattle.

Where butter has not the natural yellow color, it is well to use coloring matter.

The best time to cut the tails is well as castrate is when the lamb is a week old.

Chill not the hens carefully, and do not keep water than you have room and feed for.

Sleep when the sun is not out of the sky at foot often. Sleep makes a man a man.

A good deal more money is usually spent in wintering farm work horses than is necessary.

Should maggots be in the animal's wounds, kill them by a light application of kerosene.

Whole grain makes best feed for sheep. Cleanliness, pure water and salt are a necessity.

Provide the lungs a wallow. Nothing cures this purpose better than a stream of running water.

If the pig is stunted in its food at any stage of its life, it can never become a perfect pork-producer.

As new cows come in, give the cows some of them each morning and evening out green as a cooling crop.

It pays to maintain a heavy flow of milk, even if expensive feeds must be given the cows at certain seasons.

Stock feeds planted on rich soil in drill and well cultivated often yield from twenty to forty tons per acre.

Five clover and alfalfa hay, supplemented with roots or chaff for succulence, if you want an excellent ration.

Corn that yields well in one locality will often make an entire failure in another locality where conditions are different.

Probably the poultry plant on the average farm is usually the poorest equipped and poorest planned department on it.

Remember when you plow in the orchard that the roots are very near the surface. Three inches is plenty deep enough.

Many an animal sold for a high price because of its pedigree, should go to the butcher's pen instead of at the head of a herd.

If a cow's udder is hard or show tendency to sag, or the udder is sagging, give it vigorous rubbing and give normal good dose of salts.

The nature and conditions of the soil in which tomatoes are grown has much to do with the size of the crop and health of the plants.

Tankage, a by-product of the slaughter houses, is a wholesome feed for all kinds of live stock, but its greatest value is for hogs.

Patience of roots should be annually grown for the winter food of swine. It will prove a valuable aid in producing good fat winter porkers.

An silo will last many years if it is not used to store material in building that will soon decay or is apt to warp or shrink, and thus throw the silo out of shape.

Young cells that are put in the stall and given all the hay they will eat soon become pot-bellied, their hair grows longer and harsher and some of it stands the wrong way.

Usually it is not advisable to pasture new seedling, but often weeds can be destroyed by giving sheep the run of the fields for a few days without material injury to the seedling.

The turkey is a native of America, and, like the Indian and buffalo in their wild state, cannot stand civilization and in their domestic state will only thrive under certain conditions.

Where there is an abundance of good well-cured alfalfa hay, it is almost impossible to select a concentrate to go with it that would not make an acceptable ration to the cow.

The fall, after all of the garden plants have been killed, is the best time to clean up the trash in the garden and burn it to prevent insects from spending the winter in it and be ready to lay eggs next year.

A patch of rye sown now will be found of great help to the owner in the spring, and especially so if raising lambs for the market.

In feeding out straw and corn stover in the morning your sheep will take more exercise looking for more food to satisfy its appetite.

Everything about the poultry quarters should be got-at-able, with no filigree, cracks or crannies, and with as little furniture as may be in the poultry house.

Look out for draughts

Plant legumes in rotation

Roots should be cut or sliced before feeding

When marketing lambs leave the culls on the farm

Sheep more than any other stock require a change of pasture.

There is no danger of the production of hogs being overdone.

As the sheep winter close, they will eat down weeds to the roots.

In order to have good sized sheep grow them rapidly while young

Clover or alfalfa seem to contain just what the dairy cow needs.

The total value of farm property in the United States is $10,000,000,000

Corn contains 88 per cent. fat and heat elements, hence is no egg food.

Ducks do not continue as profitable breeders much beyond the fourth year.

Alfalfa clover seed cannot be separated from timothy because of its size

Cool the new cream to the same temperature as the old cream before salting.

Always if possible remove the sow from the pigs and not the pigs from the sow.

For draft work the male is valued higher than the average horse, in nearly every instance.

Farmers who are going to feed live stock through the winter should try to have the best possible.

Ratons are very satisfactory food crop for winter, yielding as high as 15 tons to the acre at times.

If necessary to assist the cow in delivering, use vasoline on your hands before recommencing the operation.

Water wire is used a great deal for reinforcing concrete, and in some cases old barbed wire is also used.

Watch out for ticks on the ewes. It does not pay to raise them and you better watch out for them. It pays.

Farmers will soon be feeding new hay and new grain. Change from the old to the new should be made gradually.

Many farmers make a practice of turning lambs into the corn field in the early fall to gather up all the weeds.

The proper treatment of barbed wire cuts on horses will mean fewer bleats and less serious consequences generally.

In feeding fattened stock and dairy cows, gain and profit come in proportion to the amount of food the animals put to use.

A small quantity of linseed meal fed in the milk will balance up the ration and make it practically as good as the whole milk.

Sheep-raising has been practiced since the earliest times, and is one of the most profitable branches of the live stock industry.

It is doubtful if any other one factor contributes more to the aggregate number of bad eggs on the farm than the lack of a sufficient number of properly located, clean nests.

If a big bunch of young pigs is allowed to sleep together in cramped quarters, in cold weather, they will pile up, and the under pigs will suffer. Easy to separate them into lots of eight or ten each.

Tuberculosis in live stock is the same thing as consumption in human beings. There are many ways of spreading it, but the easiest way and the most common is through the droppings of diseased animals.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

Experience may be the best teacher, but some people prefer a more fashionable school.

Miss Leonard's Heathen

By KATE CLEEVES

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

May Leonard's brother Robert met her at Manila when the long ocean voyage was ended and took her at once to a hotel.

"After you've had one good night's rest ashore you will feel more like tackling this cross-country ride to Pambunan," said Robert as they ate their dinner.

"It sounds fascinating," said May, her bright eyes drinking in the strange sights about her. "Is the country unexplored? Is there any danger now?"

"Not a particle," assured her brother. "The route we are going is a main road, well traveled, and pike and night its length. It will only take us five hours to ride down to my place, but I knew you would be too weary to start this afternoon. Now, tell me all about the folks at home."

May proceeded to do so at such length that it was very late when they separated for the night and Robert touched his head and went to his room. He was a young man of about thirty, with a strong brown face and a white shirt was worn at the collar.

May pulled her horse to a stand still and looked back at her brother, who was lagging behind. "Bobby, I believe I'll begin with him," she said, pointing toward the man who, apparently unconcerned, of their approach, was swinging away at the sugar cane whetting as he worked.

"Fire ahead," said Bobby, riding a laugh. "I'll wait in the shade of this tree. But why not continue your story to converting the women and children and let the men alone?"

She rode close beside him and explained. "I told Mr. Nash how you put it would be for me and he said that was all the more reason I should do it. I must sacrifice my feelings to the principle of the thing."

"Well, go on," said Bobby, resigning himself, although a wicked light shone in his eyes. He did not like Mr. Nash and he did love his pretty sister.

The man in the cane field did not look up until May's white blouse gown flashed in the sunlight. Then he gazed at her, startled, and whipped off his hat, which was a heavy one, and bowed to her with a flourish.

May bowed from the saddle and took courage. "My good man," she began softly, "are you a Christian?"

A startled look leaped to the man's eyes and then he said over so kindly and courteously, "I hope so, madam."

"I am so glad," cried May with relief. "I hope you will pardon my asking you—only I promised my father our home that I would do all I could to convert the heathen—"

"Heathen?" he smiled up at her. "Well, if one is going to lift the weight from the chaff it must all be converted. It's a long way from here to the mission house, but I'll try to do it."

"That's a relief," sighed May. "Good-by," she said, and when she turned her horse once more into the road he bent over his work and relived her of any embarrassment she might have felt afterward.

"It wasn't so awfully hard, Bobby," she assured her brother as they rode on. "If all of them were as courteous as that man—Why, dear, is this your place?" as he got down and opened a wide gate.

"This is Woodland—a welcome to my home, Bobby," said Robert as they entered up to the wide veranda of the bungalow.

"Where is Mr. Scoville, your partner?" went on May, as she stood in the sunlight.

"Here he comes now," said Robert in a stilled tone.

"Through the same gate that we entered—he's been taking his morning exercise in the orchard." Then Bobby Leonard did not dare look at his sister.

"You knew who he was all the time, Bob Leonard?" she demanded with rosy cheeks and flushing eyes.

"Yes, dear—you had to have your reason, May, and it better be with a gentleman like Scoville than some penniless stranger who can talk back at you in some language you do not understand," apologized and explained Robert.

Arthur Scoville came up to the veranda and was presented to May Leonard. Not once by look or sign did he give evidence that he had seen her before, and his last in passing over this embarrassing period was the beginning of May Leonard's falling in love with him.

They did fall in love with each other, those two, and it was only their promise to stand by Robert and the new-found industry until its successful termination that prevented that clever young American from weeping audibly.

Initials of Alexander Pope.

Every Declared by Adding E to Them You Had His Character—Change in Writer's Name.

Alexander Pope was a victim of his initials. After the publication of the "Dunciad," one of the poet's enemies, who had suffered a severe trouncing in the satire declared that if you took the initials letters of Pope's name and added the final letter of his surname you had his character.

The "jest" caught on, and in 1728 appeared a pamphlet entitled "Pope Alexander's Supremacy and Infidelity Examined." The frontispiece to this now forgotten pamphlet represented Pope in the form of an ape, with his head resting on his hand, and his elbow placed upon a pile of his own works.

No modern writer is better known by his initials than Robert Lewis Stevenson, but "R. L. S." was arrived at after considerable experiment. Stevenson's baptismal names were Robert Lewis and John.

Robert Lewis and John, and the third name came from the difficulty of his signature. Until he was about fifteen he signed himself "R. Stevenson." After that he occasionally used Stevenson, "R. L. S." In 1858 he asked his mother to address him as "Robert Lewis"; but a year or two later, as he expressed it in a letter to Mr. Baxter, "after several years of feeble and ineffectual endeavor with regard to my third initial (a thing I loathed) he finally abandoned it altogether."

Stevenson, who about eighteen changed the spelling of his second name from "Lewis" to "John," but Lewis he remained at all times in the mouth of his family and friends.

When Friendship Counts.

The doors of the deformed man are always locked, and the key is in the hands of the many. The treasures of charm inside, but they will never be revealed unless the person outside co-operates with him in unlocking the door. A friend becomes, to a much greater degree than with the ordinary man, the indispensable medium of all his life. One only exists, so to speak, with friends. It is easy to see how hopelessly such a sensitive, inexperienced man for business, professional or social life, where the hasty and superficial impression is everything, and disaster is in the face of the man who has not all the treasures of his personality in the front window where they can be readily inspected and appreciated. In order to have good sized sheep grow them rapidly while young.

Clover or alfalfa seem to contain just what the dairy cow needs.

The total value of farm property in the United States is $10,000,000,000.

Corn contains 88 per cent. fat and heat elements, hence is no egg food.

Ducks do not continue as profitable breeders much beyond the fourth year.

Alfalfa clover seed cannot be separated from timothy because of its size.

Watch out for ticks on the ewes. It does not pay to raise them and you better watch out for them. It pays.

Farmers will soon be feeding new hay and new grain. Change from the old to the new should be made gradually.

Many farmers make a practice of turning lambs into the corn field in the early fall to gather up all the weeds.

The proper treatment of barb wire cuts on horses will mean fewer blemishes and less serious consequences generally.

A small quantity of linseed meal fed in the milk will balance up the ration and make it practically as good as the whole milk.

In hogging down corn, fence off only a limited area at a time, as the hogs will eat more of the stalks and other herbage on the ground, and they will not waste as much of the grain.

FULL REPORT OF

W. H. MANNING.

Warren H. Manning, the landscape architect, who was employed to lay out a plan for the city of Grand Rapids, has submitted with the plan a written report, which is quite interesting to anyone interested in the matter of improving the appearance of the city. The report of Mr. Manning is given below:

GRAND RAPIDS AND ITS COMMANING LOCATIONS.

Grand Rapids, Wisconsin, is situated in the geographical center of the state where four main roads intersect. It is on both banks of the Grand River which is a fine waterway that passes through the city. The city is situated on a high point of land, which is a fine location for a city. New Store Opened.

McCamley & Pommerville opened their new hardware store in the Woodland block on the east side this morning. The new firm will carry a general stock of heavy and light hardware, including stoves, ranges, tinware, sporting goods, tools, tailors' hardware, etc.

Tag Day Friday.

Friday will be tag day and men are warned to have some change in their pockets that morning or else stay at home, unless they wish to be stoned up as lightweights by the ladies.

ALTDORF.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huser are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl at their home Oct. 21.

Mrs. O. J. Lee has one of the Witter Traveling Libraries at her home, so any one who wishes some good reading may get it there. There are about twenty German books in it.

B. M. Johnson of Independence was a visitor at the O. Lee home Sunday. He came to buy a Holstein bull.

"Don't reject a thing because it is new. Circumstances alter cases. Our present needs and necessities, as related to the farm all around are different from what they were forty years ago. If a thing is of practical worth, if it will help the soil, the cattle, the wife and the children more than the interest on the cost, it is a good investment even if you borrow the money to pay for it. How many farmers have we heard lamenting that they did not borrow the money thirty years ago to buy a pure bred sow and a few hogs? "It would have been worth ten times the interest," they will say. They can see it now. We must remember that about the first thing to learn in any kind of business is to be a good judge of values."

FOURTEEN MILE CREEK.

A light frost visited these parts Friday night. People are all rushing out their potatoes.

Mrs. Nettie Westgate of Omaha, Neb., is here visiting her uncle, P. M. Rous and family this week.

Mr. Luman went to Fond du Lac Sunday on business.

Mr. Camp dug potatoes for Rob Reid last week and his son Walter picked them up.

Mrs. Hattie Johnson and son Charlie who have been visiting for sister, Mrs. P. M. Rous, have returned to their home in Minnesota.

Miss Eulalia Powers was called home Saturday by the illness of her mother. Her brother-in-law and Mr. Donovan came up after her with their auto.

BIRTHS.

A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Babcock, Blron.

RAILROAD TRACKS.

One of the most important problems of the west side is to secure rearrangement of railroad lines and spur tracks so they will meet the requirements of your citizens who now must cross, in the settled section of your town, when streets are connected, over fifty grade crossings. Most of these grade crossings are in the city and it is a plan that would provide for the joint use of tracks similar to the arrangement at Neokoma. If the C. M. & St. P. R. R. tracks could be moved over parallel to the Wisconsin Avenue and C. & N. W. railroads, Grand Rapids would have a fine grade crossing at a Union Station site by a viaduct, of reasonable length and grade, leaving the large holding of the C. M. & St. P. R. R. south of Grand Avenue, with franchises at either side added to it for the use of freight yards. An arrangement could be made for the use of the tracks to be joined up at all points at one place, probably with the existing tracks at Cleveland Street by which means could be gained in all riverside industries and thus out the spur tracks between the Union Street and Grand Avenue and Second Avenue. It is desirable that the unoccupied right of way of the C. & N. W. through West Eleventh Avenue be exchanged for one parallel to the proposed change in the main line to permit it to pass under the suggested Grand Avenue street. The right of way would involve 12 grade crossings. If the road now on the city plan were to go over it, I have also indicated a distributing yard at the point where all the railroad tracks intersect by a single junction from each other north of the city limits, and a distributing yard for the main line junction points for the subdivision of mixed trains and the reassembling of solid trains for different lines and branches.

I have also on Boulevard Avenue, which is on the city plan, indicated a section 12 and 13, indicated a marked track line to give a large territory to the northwest and west of the town that is rapidly filling with houses, direct paths to the river side drives and the city shore and isthmia parks that are now and are to be acquired, which will be important places of resort in a few years. I have indicated a viaduct of Grand Avenue to the north of the city, out of the country roads to include and keep open the water course in a reservation on the northerly side.

Street terminals and shore outlook points like the one indicated at the eastern end of Main Street on the point where a portion of the street is used as a reservation and path, are important features of the city. An examination of the plan and the grounds will show opposite both the shore and the city streets where they meet together at the angle, many lots on which structures could be placed that would be fine street terminals.

RUDELPH.

Miss Clara Korstin, who is attending training school in Grand Rapids, came home Friday night and Sunday afternoon a crowd of young folks came over and gave her a surprise. Miss Hauha also was home for the party. All had a good time.
